

Chiropractors, Chris and Lori Thomson and are both members of the Scottish Chiropractic Association. Chris Thomson is also the former Vice-President of the Association, a position he held for 10 years before stepping down.

The Association was formed in 1979 and has since grown rapidly. There are now over 85 members practising in Scotland and over 120 associated members located in Scotland, England, Wales, Northern Island and various other countries around the world.

You can read more about the Scottish Chiropractic Association at their website by following the link below:

Scottish Chiropractic Association